SERIES CONCEPT

Rehabilitation Supervisors and Rehabilitation Counselors manage a caseload budget; determine eligibility or ineligibility; assess rehabilitation needs; develop individualized plans for employment (IPE); coordinate the delivery of services; provide counseling and advocacy services; provide appropriate job placement; and determine employment outcome in order to minimize disabling conditions and reduce dependency for individuals whose mental or physical disability presents a barrier to employment and/or self-sufficiency.

Manage the caseload budget; project and authorize expenditures to assess applicants and meet client needs for physical and mental restoration, training or other rehabilitation services; establish priorities of case spending; track caseload expenses according to prevailing federal, State and agency policies and guidelines; identify and utilize other available financial resources to maximize the use of agency funds.

Interview applicants to establish case histories to include family background, social characteristics, education, work experience, health history and financial status; identify appropriate diagnostics, consultations, medical and psychological records needed to determine eligibility or ineligibility; schedule applicants for medical, psychological and vocational assessments; make referrals to other social services as appropriate.

Analyze data gathered to establish the existence of a disabling condition; determine physical and psychological limitations which are impediments to employment; determine the applicants’ need for, and ability to benefit from rehabilitation services to obtain employment for eligibility purposes and plan development.

Determine and document ineligibility based on clear and convincing evidence which may include trial work periods.

Assess rehabilitation needs of clients; identify medical, psychological, social, vocational, educational and other needs including unique strengths, resources, priorities and interests.

Develop an IPE; determine a realistic vocational goal with the informed choice of clients; identify specific intermediate objectives and strategies; determine evaluation criteria and schedules; identify service providers and coordinate service delivery; evaluate the effectiveness of services provided; ensure clients utilize available benefits and entitlements; provide required services; review and modify goals and strategies as needed.

Provide ongoing service coordination and advocacy on behalf of clients to facilitate the IPE; perform a variety of counseling to include adjustment, family, individual and group, and career and job readiness counseling; coordinate job placement services.

Assess job readiness; provide job seeking skills training; develop job placement resources by contacting local employers and private vendors to become familiar with the job market; provide information to local employers regarding agency program goals and State and federal employment incentives; advise and assist employers with appropriate work station modification to accommodate specific disabilities; provide on-the-job training, supportive work, selective job placement and follow-up.
SERIES CONCEPT (cont’d)

Consult with doctors, psychologists, therapists, prosthesis manufacturers, hospital staffs and dentists to plan and coordinate delivery of physical and mental restoration services; refer clients to training programs in high schools, universities, vocational schools and arrange for mobility and independent living instruction as appropriate; authorize and monitor vocational assessment and vocational adjustment services to evaluate clients' physical and mental limitations, level of vocational functioning, attitude, motivation and work tolerance; consult with co-workers and service providers such as social workers, veterans' representatives and school officials to coordinate areas of overlapping services.

Maintain case files and document all activities and expenditures to include development of IPE, progress notations, correspondence, diagnostic and evaluative reports, case histories and budget status reports; collect, analyze, and report statistical and budget data related to caseloads.

Represent client and agency interests by attending meetings and community events and interacting with employers, other agencies, members of the community and local facilities and institutions; serve on committees and agency staffing to explore issues that impact the agency and its clientele.

Perform related duties as assigned.

CLASS CONCEPTS

Rehabilitation Supervisor: Under general direction, incumbents plan, organize, coordinate and supervise the day-to-day activites of two or more professional staff in a district office or in multiple satellite offices; ensure compliance with applicable federal and State regulations, policies and procedures; and participate in program planning and implementation.

Supervise assigned staff in daily work; provide input to employee selection; provide training and guidance for staff development; delegate authority and responsibility; assign work based on workers' caseloads, skill level and experience; assist in the resolution of more difficult casework problems; assist in establishing work performance standards; evaluate work performance, participate in required formal case reviews and initiate disciplinary actions as required.

Perform fiscal management functions to prevent deficit spending and ensure compliance with fiscal policies and procedures; distribute case service funds to subordinate Rehabilitation Counselors; monitor and approve expenditures for client services when expenditures exceed Rehabilitation Counselor’s spending authority; resolve problems with vendors providing client services; take corrective action when spending deviates from targeted goals and program emphasis.

Implement federal, State and agency regulations, policies and guidelines related to program operations; provide assigned staff with explanations, clarifications and interpretations of policies and procedures; review and analyze case records and computer generated reports to determine quality, quantity and timeliness of work production; take corrective action when work unit and individual performance goals are not met; provide higher level management staff with reports which summarize program activities, transactions and production; investigate and mediate client complaints and determine an appropriate course of action; facilitate development of resources within the areas of responsibility.

Establish and maintain cooperative working relationships in the professional and business community to explain services, coordinate service delivery, identify available services, respond to inquiries, and resolve complaints.

Ensure continuity of services by performing duties assigned to other positions in the agency during staff shortages or absences.
CLASS CONCEPTS (cont’d)

Rehabilitation Counselor III: Under general direction, incumbents manage a caseload, perform the full range of duties described in the series concept and either:

1) Independently manage a satellite office in a designated geographical area located in a rural or metropolitan community. Office management responsibilities include administering the operating and program budgets to ensure expenditures do not exceed authorized levels and planning and scheduling day-to-day activities within the scope of established goals and objectives. Incumbents supervise subordinate Rehabilitation Counselors and/or support staff by assigning and reviewing work, providing training and employee development, conducting performance appraisals, and initiating disciplinary actions. Incumbents represent the agency and persons with disabilities to the community, educate the community about disability issues and agency programs, and develop available community resources by attending meetings and conferences, sitting on boards and committees, participating in required formal case reviews, making presentations and providing interpretations of program regulations and guidelines; or

2) Supervise a work unit in a district office including at least one subordinate Rehabilitation Counselor II and support staff in a district office; assign and review work; provide training and staff development; evaluate performance; initiate disciplinary action. In addition, incumbents assist the Rehabilitation Supervisor train and mentor newly hired Rehabilitation Counselors I and II; provide technical expertise and guidance in case management and interpretation and application of policies and procedures; assist in resolving problems with clients and service providers; and review work for accuracy and completeness.

This is the advanced journey level in the series. Work is assigned through agency goals and objectives and goal attainment is monitored through informational reports, formal discussions and casework review. This class is distinguished from the lower level by greater signature authority for expenditure of funds and satellite office management, or supervisory and lead worker responsibility for subordinate professional staff. These duties result in a greater variety and complexity of work and higher levels of independence and decision-making.

Rehabilitation Counselor II: Under general direction, incumbents function at the full journey level as a member of a rehabilitation unit. Incumbents manage a caseload and make independent case decisions related to the rehabilitation process and encumber funds for case services and participate in formal case reviews; however, eligibility determinations, individual plans, progress and case closure decisions are subject to supervisory review through case records and statistical printouts and formal case reviews. Incumbents may assign and review work performed by support staff.

This is the journey level in the series. It is distinguished from the trainee level by greater independence, judgment and decision-making required.

Rehabilitation Counselor I: Under close supervision, incumbents learn to perform the full range of duties described in the series concept. Progression to the journey level may only occur upon meeting minimum qualifications and with the recommendation of the appointing authority.
