OPTION B - CORRECTIONS:

In addition to the full range of duties described in the series concept for both options, incumbents in a correctional setting perform the following duties:

Observe, monitor, document and report changes in inmate mental and physical health status and appearance to professional staff in order to provide appropriate treatment; ensure a secure environment during treatment; take and chart vital signs, inmate activity, dietary intake, input and output of fluids, and weight; monitor pill call and inmate behavior and specific incidents and problems.

Assist with laboratory tests, x-rays, consultations and special procedures; centrifuge specimens; perform simple procedures for inmates which may include applying cold and hot packs, foot soaks, feeding, forcing fluids, electrocardiograms, enemas, and diathermy as directed by medical staff.

Perform the duties of a Licensed Practical Nurse if so licensed by the State Nursing Board.

CLASS CONCEPTS

Forensic Specialist IV: Under direction of professional staff, incumbents perform all or part of the duties in the series concept, and in addition, supervise a group of subordinate Forensic Specialists in the performance of their duties. Supervisory duties include training, assigning and reviewing work, preparing and conducting performance evaluations, and recommending disciplinary action. Supervisory work is reviewed periodically through observation, documentation and as unusual circumstances occur.

Forensic Specialist III: Under direction of professional staff or Forensic Specialist IV's, incumbents perform the duties described in the series concept at the journey level. Completed work is reviewed periodically, through observation, documentation, and as unusual circumstances occur. Incumbents assist in training and overseeing the work of lower level staff, serve as a leadworker and oversee shift activities as assigned. Agency policy and procedures are available for reference.

Forensic Specialist II: Under general supervision of professional staff or higher level Forensic Specialists, incumbents continue to receive training and gain experience in performing the duties described in the series concept. Work is reviewed on a regular basis to ensure compliance with security standards and standards of care. Agency policy and procedures are available for training and reference. This is the second training level in the series, and progression to the journey level may occur when minimum qualifications are met, the incumbent is performing satisfactorily, and with the recommendation of the appointing authority.

Forensic Specialist I: Under close supervision of professional staff or higher level Forensic Specialists, incumbents receive training in performing duties described in the series concept and must successfully complete P.O.S.T. certification training as required by law. Work is closely reviewed to ensure compliance with security standards and standards of care. Agency policy and procedures are available for training. This is the entry level in the series, and progression to the next level may occur when minimum qualifications are met, the incumbent is performing satisfactorily, and with the recommendation of the appointing authority.
